DROP TILDEN OFF DAVIS CUP TEAM; WRITER RULE CAUSE

American Team Booked To Play Italy Tomorrow for Right to Play France

WROTE FOR U. S. PAPERS

Removal of Tilden Causes
Complete Change of the American Team

PARIS, July 19.—(INS)—"Big Bill" Tilden, for years the "big gun" of American tennis, has been dropped from the American Davis Cup team which is to play Italy tomorrow, for the right to play France, the present holder of the cup, it was learned here today.

Samuel H. Collum, president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, threw a bombshell into tennis circles when he made the announcement that Tilden had been dropped because of breaking the Association's rule preventing players from writing about tournaments in which they were playing.

Tilden, Collum charged, had been writing of his recent matches in American newspapers.

By his announcement Collum brought the much-mooted player-writer rule to a startling crisis.

Tilden's removal caused a complete change of the American team. William T. Hunter and John Hennessey will represent the United States in the singles and George Lott and Hennessey in the doubles.

Previously it had been planned to play Tilden and Lott in the singles and Lott and Hennessey in the doubles in the inter-zone against Italy, opening tomorrow.

With Tilden off the team America may not even reach the challenge round in Davis Cup competition this year. The Italians, led by Baron H. L. Morpurgo, were good enough to eliminate such strong teams as Australia, Great Britain and Czechoslovakia in European zone play. They have been no set-ups for the Americans even if Tilden played. With their captain on the side-lines, the Americans may find De Morpurgo and his teammates a bit too much for them.

From present indications, the chief burden will fall upon Hunter in the inter-zone finals, which determine whether the United States or Italy will gain the right to challenge France for the historic tennis trophy. Rene La Coste, Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra won at Germantown last year.

If Hunter can succeed in turning Jack De Morpurgo and whoever else he is called upon to face in the singles the United States in all probability will succeed in gaining the challenge round. If he fails, it will be up to Hennessey, and some observers are inclined to doubt whether the lanky Indianapolis youth can meet such a test at this point in his career.

Tilden said "I refute all charges. I have protested in vain as usual. The orders emanated from New York and I know nothing about them."

The trouble dates back to the beginning of the player-writer controversy some four years ago. As a result of that it was finally agreed a player could write tennis articles for pay, but could not write contemporaneously of tournaments in which he was playing nor until three days after the event.

EXCHANGE CLUB QUILTS BRISTOL BOWLING LEAGUE

Regular monthly meeting of the Bristol Bowling Association was held in the Recreation Center on Tuesday night at which time plans for the coming season were discussed. There was a good representation present at the meeting.

The Exchange Club withdrew from the association and the vacancy thus created was filled by the Pacific Steel Boiler team. The Pacific Steel Boiler team was one of the original teams when the Bristol league was first organized in 1926. They were compelled to withdraw last year.

Teams comprising the league this year will be as follows:

Amison Pottery, American Legion, Harriman Men's Club, Pacific Steel Boiler Corporation, Young Men's Association, Bristol Fire Company No. 1, America Hose, Hobbs and Ladder Company No. 2, Keystone Aircraft Corporation, Rohm & Haas, Philadelphia Suburban Counties Gas & Electric Company.

The teams affiliated will present their list of bowlers at the next meeting of the association on August 14th, as this will be the last meeting prior to the opening of the schedule.

WILLIAM HEMS DIES

William A. Hems, the small son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Hems, died at his home here yesterday, following a few days' illness. The tot was in his second year. Funeral service will be held Friday from his parents' residence, 318 Wood street, at 2 p. m., with burial in Bristol Cemetery. Friends may call this evening.

General Obregon Assassinated

Bearing a charmed life on a dozen battlefields, General Alvaro Obregon, president-elect of Mexico, was shot to death as he sat among his friends at a banquet in the little town of San Angel just outside the gates of the capital. On the pretext of submitting several of his drawings, Juan Escapulario, a cartoonist, approached and sent seven bullets crashing into his body from a revolver concealed under a hat.

Above an intimate photo of the martyred president-elect and his family, taken in the garden of their beautiful country estate. In addition to the general and his wife, it shows their five children, l. to r., Humbor, Alvaro, Jr., Alvita, Mayo and Refugio. The full-length study at the left is a recent photograph of the one-armed leader, as is also the portrait at the right.

Forty planters in Bucks County have planted 79,725 trees in the county this spring, according to statistics just compiled by State Department of Forest.

More than 112,000,000 forest trees have been planted in Pennsylvania since 1899, when the first State forest tree plantation was established on a devastated mountain land in Pike county. Department of Forestry officials announced today.

During the past seventeen years Pennsylvania has distributed 74,645,598 forest trees from the State forest tree nurseries for planting on private lands within the State.

No county of the State is without its plantations and no group of land owners is without its tree planters.

WINNING STREAK OF ST. ANN'S SHATTERED

"Smoky Joe" Kohler and Men
Best Opponents By
1 to 0 Score

EXCELLENT SUPPORT

By T. M. Juno

St. Ann's winning streak of nine straight went shattering last night when "Joe" Kohler, of the Independents, bested "Iron Mah" Tulio, of St. Ann's. The final score stood one to nothing.

The battle was one of the best staged here this season, both pitchers being in the best of form. They allowed three measly hits apiece and both gave out two passes. The support on both sides was extraordinary.

Kohler won his own game in the ninth. With men on first and second he sent a short fungo fly to Gilardi, who after a long run dropped the ball. Rubino, one of the runners, crossed the plate with the winning run. The hit went for a single.

"Sammy" Lasprella saved the Independents a number of times by his hair-raising stop. Four times in the pinches this bug dug down into the dirt to come up with grounders and throw out the runner.

Gilardi, who gathered two of the losers' three hits featured in the field with a shoestring catch of Hibbs' liner which hugged the grounder. Gilardi was flat on his chest when he caught the ball. He was greatly applauded by the throng that witnessed the combat.

There will not be any game tonight on the local field.

Fields opened the game by fanning. This was the first time that Fields struck out this year. Gilardi doubled to right. Roe hit to Lasprella, who threw to Avella, getting Gilardi at third. Paletta fled out.

Greco fanned to start off the Independents' first. Avella lofted to Missera. Lasprella singled and tried to stretch it. Gilardi's perfect peg to Seneca nailed the runner.

The "Saints" got two men on to no avail in the second. O'Rioli fled to Kohler. Missera caught a pitched ball in his slats. Seneca was passed. DeRisi grounded to Romeo, advancing the runners. Tulio was thrown out by Lasprella.

Hibbs fled to Missera in the Independents' half. Romeo was passed. Rubino tapped to Tulio and was out. Piazza skied to Fields.

Kohler did fine work in the St. Ann's third. Fields and Gilardi struck out. Roe grounded out to short.

For the Independents, McGlynn fled out. Kohler lined to Seneca and Greco struck out.

St. Ann's were helpless again in the fourth. Paletta tapped in front of the plate and was thrown out by Hibbs. O'Rioli fouled to Hibbs. Missera whiffed.

Tulio was master in the Independents' part. Avella breezed. Lasprella hit to Tulio and went out. Hibbs' liner went to Gilardi who made a wonderful catch.

Seneca singled to begin the fifth but was caught asleep off first. DeRisi (Continued on Page Six)

DOYLESTOWN WANTS COURTEOUS COPS SAY BUSINESS MEN

Many Also Approve Widening of Principle Business Street

SUGGEST TRAINED MAN

One-Sided Parking Approved
By Many, It Is Claimed

DOYLESTOWN, July 19.—More courteous treatment on the part of certain local police officers towards motorists would greatly assist the proper enforcement of the borough parking laws, was the opinion of a number of people interviewed at random.

If it is true officers have been discourteous in the past, it is time for the head of the police department in Doylestown to make a thorough investigation, was another statement made by a local business man.

The idea suggested by a number of Borough Council that Main street be widened through the co-operation of property owners giving a small section of the pavement for street purposes, met with the approval of every business man interviewed today.

Although many business men do not feel it is wise for them to publicly charge any particular member of the police department with inefficiency, they all agree that if an investigation is made, and it is found that motorists do not receive courteous treatment, that some action be taken to place other men in the service.

That at least one local officer be thoroughly trained and acquainted with the parking rules and the general rules of the road and the location of state highways in general within a radius of fifty miles at least of Doylestown, was another suggestion made this morning.

G. R. Barber, local druggist, in commenting today, said he believed there should be one-hour parking on one side of Main and State streets at all times.

"It is foolish to sanction parking on both sides of Doylestown's two busy streets, Main and State," he said. "The idea of widening Main street is a very good one. So far as the police officers are concerned, I have nothing to say. They have always treated me courteously. There should be no discourteous treatment to motorists on their part. They should assist motorists in finding parking places rather than simply tell them to 'move along.'"

Widen Main street as suggested and give all the business men an even break and allow parking on both sides of Main street the same as State street," was the opinion of William Lagorio, proprietor of a local tire shop.

Thomas Lyons, a local jeweler, stated that he was in favor of parking on one side of Main street.

"If the parking ordinance in Doylestown is to be enforced, let the police enforce it upon every motorist, whether a resident of Doylestown or not," said another business man who did not desire to be quoted. "I believe that if a drive against illegal parking was made, the motorists would realize the police meant business and would obey the law and co-operate with them. But to arrest one man today and another tomorrow and allow scores to violate the law right in front of the eyes of the police, is not right."

"I will be perfectly willing to give several feet of the pavement of my property on South Main street in order to widen the street to relieve traffic congestion," said J. Carroll Molloy, local realtor, this morning. "I am sure that property owners between Oakland avenue and State street on Main, will be very willing to co-operate."

REBUILDING OF PIKE CALLS FOR TRAFFIC DETOUR

Re-Route Plan Announced
During Construction of Portion of Highway

PASSES THROUGH EMILIE

Resurfacing Beaver Street and Make Other Plans For Temporary Route

State, local and county highway authorities have been planning a re-routing of traffic so as to be prepared when work is started on the rebuilding of that portion of Bristol Pike, extending from the Borough line to the boundary line of Tullytown.

The contract for building the new road was awarded to George I. Thompson, Clearfield, Pa., for the sum of $63,950.02. The concrete is to be 18 feet wide with a five foot dirt shoulder on either side. The thickness of the concrete will be seven inches in the center and nine inches along the edges. Several new methods of reinforcement will be used.

The tracks of the Trenton, Bristol & Philadelphia Street Railway Company will remain in the same position as they now occupy with the exception of a curve at what is known as Harshaw's curve. The tracks now cross the road at this point and under the new plans the tracks will cross the road about 100 feet west of where the point of crossing is now located.

Traffic is to be diverted from Pond street at Walnut out over Beaver street, through Emilie. At George Lynn's corner, just this side of Fallstown the route will lead over what is now a one-way road to the Bristol Pike. Traffic will come back onto the Pike at Penn Valley.

By using this route all small canal bridges will be eliminated and heavy trucks as well as smaller cars can use the route with safety.

The two-mile stretch of one-way road leading from the stone road at Lynn's corner to the Bristol Pike at Penn Valley is to be rebuilt too. This road will be of stone and of sufficient width to accommodate two trucks passing each other.

The Bristol Township road authorities under the direction of Russell Stackhouse, supervisor, are now preparing for the detour. Beaver street from the point of intersection with Buckley is being resurfaced. That portion of Beaver Dam road, extending from Booz's corner to Lynn's corner will also be resurfaced. Workmen are now patching the holes preparatory to resurfacing. Trees are being trimmed along both sides of the highway, so that the branches will not interfere with traffic and all brush along the sides of the road is being moved.

The Pennsylvania Department of Highways' construction program, so far this year, exceeds last year's program by 188 miles. Secretary of Highways James L. Stuart stated in his June monthly report to Governor John S. Fisher. Including the lettings to be held on July 26 and 27, the Department of Highways has advertised for bids during the present year 428 miles of construction which includes 25.5 miles of grading and drainage projects. The lettings on July 26 and 27 cover 56.9 miles on construction.

Contractors laid 89.54 miles of pavement during the present season, including the week ending June 23. In the last week of June, 6.19 miles were laid. Grading and drainage projects completed by contract this year total seventeen miles.

At the end of June, 164 contracts were under way and 37.86 miles of pavement completed. The exceptionally low mileage was due to the heavy rains. Road and bridge construction projects awarded in June totaled fifty-seven miles and amounted to $2,529,198.36.

The Department of Highways, with its own forces, surfaced with a flexible type of construction, up to and including June 23, 11.57 miles and resurfaced 37.31 miles with principally flexible type of construction. Surface treatments were applied to 1495 miles of roads by the department's maintenance forces.

During the month of June, 1,596,456 gallons of bituminous material were applied on 549 miles of highways. The total number of employees in the Department of Highways on July 1, was 12,170, of which 3,323 were on a salaried basis and 8,847 on an hourly basis. The maintenance forces had a total of 8761 employees on the hourly basis. Of the 3323 salaried employees, 1859 are assigned to the field forces, including engineers, corpsmen, drafts-men, inspectors and maintenance employees.

During the month of June, "Thru" stop signs were placed on 1,300 miles of designated "Thru" Traffic Highways.

FARM LIFE IS DIFFERENT

The farmer knows that life in the country has not always been the idyllic existence country-hungry city folks have pictured it. Only the "new farmer" can not remember the struggle against nature and the days of sun-up to sun-down toil once the lot of the men and women on the farm. The modern farm is as unlike its antecedents as the modern factory is unlike its prototype and as the modern city home is unlike the home of two decades ago.

On the farm today are found the automobile, tractor, telephone, electric lights and power, milking machines, harvesting and planting machinery performing several operations simultaneously, the radio, the household comforts and conveniences of the city home and even leisure and recreation. The prodigal son wouldn't know the old farm if he returned today after an absence of two decades.

True it is that some farmers still employ primitive methods of agriculture and refuse or are unable to emancipate themselves from their slavery to the soil by adopting labor-saving devices. And it is just as true that agriculturists as a class have been slow to adopt modern methods.

The time is not long past when "new fangled notions" were exceedingly distrusted on the farm. The "old way" was good enough for the fathers and what was good enough for the fathers was good enough for the sons when they succeeded to the management of the farm. It was not vanity nor obstinacy which caused good farmers to scoff at scientific methods in those days. The best farmers sincerely believed they could get out of the soil only what the soil yielded of its own volition.

The change on the farm has been nothing short of revolutionary and the revolutionists have been the men and women who for generations had stubbornly resisted change and impeded progress.

GREATNESS

Human qualities alone do not make greatness, in its true sense. The possession of real greatness comes from qualities of the divine which show forth in the demeanor of man. Greatness that is genuine is characterized by simplicity. He who is truly great does not put himself forward. Perfect poise, which manifests itself in speech and in action, is an outstanding mark of greatness. The world spontaneously volunteers admiration for the one who can remain unmoved by the storms of strife and passion which sway other men about him.

Candor and straightforward speaking are found in those who are really great. They have nothing to conceal, they have no need to deceive. What they say comes from their hearts and may be depended upon. The great man is tolerant of the opinions of others; he is charitable toward their failings; he is genuinely sympathetic in their sorrow; he rejoices in their successes.

Such are some of the qualities of greatness, which are deeper and of more worth than many of the material symbols for which men are often more inclined to work toward. Real greatness consists in showing forth the image and likeness of God.

The nice thing about having a home is it always gives you some place to wish you were when you are away.

Commend Pupils In Waynesboro Schools

HARRISBURG, July 19.—Superintendent J. Clair McCullough has reported to the Department of Public Instruction a perfect attendance record in the public schools of Waynesboro during the term that has just closed.

Five hundred and five pupils of the 2,173, or 23 per cent, of all those enrolled, were neither absent from school nor tardy during the entire school year. Two hundred and thirty-five of these pupils maintained perfect attendance records for the first time during the current year and received perfect attendance certificates awarded by the Department of Public Instruction through the office of the district superintendent. Two hundred and seventy who were perfect in attendance this year had maintained similar records during preceding years. They received seals, which are to be attached to certificates awarded previously.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., July 18.—(INS)—Julius Seligson, Lehigh University Sophomore, who in his first season of varsity competition captured the national intercollegiate tennis championship, is one outstanding athlete who will not be lost to the Brown and White because of graduation or other reasons.

Inroads in other sports, apparent by a recent survey, had been severe, indicated not only by graduation but by scholastic weeding out in the final examination.

The list of those graduating discloses no less than 38 athletes, with every one of the 10 sports losing one or more regulars. Lehigh's intercollegiate wrestling championship team was probably the hardest hit.

"TENDERLOIN" starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picture. Copyright 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures Inc. A satchel containing $200,000 has been stolen from the Mercer National Bank. Rose Shannon, escaping from the unwelcome attentions of Chuck White, finds the satchel in the street. The Professor, leader of the gang of crooks to which Chuck belongs, is furious that his scheme for stealing the money has been foiled. Meanwhile, on her way to return the satchel, Rose is met by a policeman, who marches her off to the police station. The satchel is opened, and it is found that the contents have been stolen and from washers substituted. Detectives follow Rose when she is released. They watch her drive off with Chuck.

SYNOPSIS

"Oh, he said something about having an idea as to who had the money."

"He did? Who's he think has it?" Chuck asked quickly.

"I don't know. He didn't say. He just had some ideas about it. I guess. Why?"

"Oh—Oh, nothing. I was just wondering. If they found it, that'd clear you up, that's all."

A cloud passed swiftly over the girl's face. "Isn't it awful," she breathed. "But I'm not afraid—now that I'm with you, Chuck. All I want to do is to forget about it. Let's not talk about it any more."

She pleaded. "Tell me something about your Uncle. What's he like?"

"His name's Hemmaway—Professor Hemmaway," Chuck informed her. "He's got an antique store—he's bugs on that stuff. You oughta hear him talk. He sure can sling words around. You know that bird you set up to Kelly's with me—the little one—Sparrow?"

"Oh, yes, I remember him."

"Well, he does some work for my Uncle—goes around getting dope on all sorts of stuff for him." He smiled grimly and turned to look out the window again. Yes, the dicks were still there.

"I figured they'd light out for Hemmaway's," Simpson, his long legs sprawling out before him, mumbled as the car bounced jerkily over the cobblestones.

"Sure! I knew Chuck White was mixed up in this some way," Cowles answered, turning out for a huge motor truck that was bearing down upon them.

"Imagine that Jane givin' him the shiner," Simpson continued, chewing on an unlighted cigar. "I bet he was sore as a pup. I wish the Chief'd let us make a pinch, though."

"He's not working for publicity," Cowles retorted. "He won't do anything until he's good and certain, and when he does, we'll have the right parties."

"Well, I still can't help fingerin' there's a mix-up some place. There's somebody else in on this we ain't fingerin' on."

The two lapsed into silence again, watching the car ahead.

"Say, kid, you sure need some glad rags," Chuck was appraising

"For the love of mud! What do you suppose they're out after this morn' for?" Cowles exploded. "You know Chuck White—he don't fall for the dames—they fall for him."

"You never can tell," Simpson retorted. "Anyhow, if the Jane's playin' her gang for a fare-you-well there's goin' to be hell poppin' around here."

"Sure there is. But now get this straight. That moll didn't bean Chuck White for nothing. She even admitted doing it. So why did she bean him? Because Chuck's cast for the lead in this job and she wants to get him out of the way. I think Hemmaway's gang's wise, and they're playing the Jane. Anyhow, we're going to see something pretty soon." He stopped the car with a sudden jerk.

"Goin' to park around here?" Simpson asked.

"Yep, we can pick up anything easy enough." He got out, followed by Simpson, and the two eased around the corner where the taxicab had preceded them.

Rose and Chuck had already stepped out onto the sidewalk, and Chuck was instructing the driver to wait. Rose looked about her curiously. She knew that she was in the Tenderloin district once more, but she didn't know what street, or just where. She looked up at the antique shop, gazing into its dusty windows, fascinated by the sight of the old curios. But Chuck was already beside her and taking her arm, leading her to the door, flinging it open. In another moment it had closed behind them, swallowing them up from sight.

From early morning on an air of tense, suppressed excitement had hung over the antique shop. Curtains were drawn; no sunlight peeped into the dusty room; only a soft glow from the shaded electric lights illuminated faces and figures. A great stillness reigned, broken now and then by snatches of conversation and the uneven steps of the Professor as he paced about, his head bowed, deep in thought, his long coat flapping around his legs.

Lounging back in a deep chair, Maurey gazed dreamily over the room, pulling now and again on a limp cigarette. His dark hair, graying at the temples, framed a lean, haggard face. He was, perhaps, forty-five, but he looked sixty—and an unkempt sixty, at that. His well-knit frame still lent him some distinction, but the flesh had shrunk and aged, hanging, like old, creased paper, thinly, almost transparently. His long, nervous fingers seemed built only of bones that protruded gruesomely as he moved his hands.

On the incongruous leather couch lounged Sparrow. His checked suit had been replaced by one of dark blue that lent to his emaciated body an even greater thinness. He watched idly the Mug, who stood leaning against the tapestry and covered the window, thrusting it slightly aside every few moments to scan the street, and dropping it again almost immediately. He, too, was dressed in a quiet suit of dark blue, with a stiff collar that ill suited his scarred, pugnaeous face.

"I'm just crazy about you—let's get married!"

the cheap, thin coat and the worn shoes of the girl beside him.

"Oh, but I haven't any money. Chuck—only four dollars, and I couldn't buy very much for that. It don't matter, I'll get a job right away and—"

"Job, nothing!" Chuck laughed. "I got everything all fixed. You see, I told my Uncle all about you—he's a good old guy; you'll like him—and I told him how crazy I was about you so he's been getting everything fixed up for us. He got you some scenery—I knew you wouldn't have so much as you'd need some glad rags to make you forget all this stuff. An' then—know what we're gonna do?"

"No! What?" Rose looked up happily, her eyes bright with delight.

"We're going down to my Aunt's in the country! Oh, Chuck! Do you really mean it? Honest?" Rose could scarcely contain her joy.

"Sure, I mean it, sweetheart," Chuck pressed the girl's hand tenderly. "An' then, Rose, if you—if you can forget all that stuff I pulled that night, why—why— Oh, jeez, kid, I'm just crazy about you. I can't say it so good, but—but—let's get married? What d'ya say?"

He leaned closer and kissed the fair, pale cheek. "You need a good rest, an' then we can come back to New York an' get married."

"Chuck, dear—Oh, I'm so happy!" Rose raised her head and looked deep into the boy's eyes.

"Honest, you don't know how worried I was when I read about all that stuff in the papers," Chuck began. "I didn't know what to do. I was scared stiff." He glanced out the window in the back of the cab again. Yes, the dicks were still camping on the trail.

"It was awful," Rose admitted. "The first couple of days the reporters all come to see me, and all the time the detectives and the policemen were trying to get me to confess to something. But Sergeant Cassidy was awful nice to me last night."

"Sure, he's a good guy," Chuck agreed. "What did he tell you?"

A scientist foresees a generation that will not get out of bed. That will be a novelty after the present generation that never goes to bed. In other words, as we understand it, the rising generation retires about when the retiring generation rises.

The battle cry of a certain farm paper is "A good living and ten per cent." Must have swiped that idea from the bankers.

All successes are the results of well-constructed air castle building.

It is queer that the stork does not sing, when he brings so much fuss wherever he lights.

No Pocket In A Shroud

Use your money while you're living; Do not hoard it to be proud; You can never take it with you— There's no pocket in a shroud.

Gold can help you on no further Than the churchyard where you lie, And, though rich while living, You're a pauper when you die.

Use it, then, some life to brighten, As thru life they weary plod; Place your bank account in heaven, And grow rich toward your God.

Use it carefully, use it freely, Do not hoard it to be proud; You can never take it with you— There's no pocket in a shroud.

"Newton Corner—Tumble-down 10-room house, $9,500; roof leaks; neighbors are terrible, but in best location"—Boston Herald—Fair enough.

Mrs. Jenkinson had been to a political meeting, and when she returned home she regaled her husband with her party views.

"We are going to sweep the country," she exclaimed. "Then," remarked her husband, "you had better start with the kitchen, dear!"

Flattery: Men are like stone jugs—you may lug them where you like by the ears.

Wall street considers them farm blockheads.

"Now," said the teacher, "I want you all to write a composition. Don't write anything you've ever heard or seen before. Write just what's in you." Here's what Johnny wrote:

"Inside of me there's a heart, a liver, two lungs and a stomach. Inside my stomach there's some potatoes, a steak, two pickles, a piece of bread and some strawberry shortcake, etc., etc."

Modesty, like a blue serge suit, is always becoming.

It is no trouble to meet your expenses these days. In fact it is rather hard to keep from them.

Bill collectors have little knowledge of good manners. They always call again without an invitation.

Announcing A New Reo Wolverine

The Sedan
$1295
At Lansing

DRESSED IN THE MODE OF TOMORROW

THERE is a new Reo Wolverine on the streets today . . . a car built to fill a very real need: the need of modern men and women for a car that is distinctively smart without being ostentatious, that is beautiful and able, but inexpensive.

You'll find new grace in this latest Wolverine Sedan . . . a new feeling of length, of roominess without bulk . . . and, of course, many of the refinements which characterize fine larger cars: all-metal rear contours, bullet-type headlamps, deeper radiator, special belt treatment blending into a new paneling on the sides.

And beneath this up-to-the-minute style, these new Wolverines carry a hard-working, punishment-taking power plant that assures delightful mastery over traffic . . . that says, "I'm a car that means business," every time you touch the accelerator.

You'll enjoy looking over the new Reo Wolverine . . . and if you haven't driven one already, just take a turn behind the wheel . . . you may find that it's just the car you've been waiting for.

THE SPIRIT OF NEIGHBORLINESS

Of Course We Like to Show the Neighbors

NEXT to our own satisfaction in a new possession is the joy of showing it to friends and neighbors. As a rule they derive as much pleasure therefrom as we do. It may even be passed across the back-yard fence for inspection as we borrow that friendly cup of sugar.

Much the same thought actuates the merchants of Bristol in arranging special display occasions of that which they have carefully and painstakingly provided for you, their neighbors, who come into stores all through the years.

For want of a better word they call these occasions their Fall and Spring "Openings."

Just now they are planning their Fall Opening.

Keep a neighborly eye peeled for further newspaper announcements of the program. It will be well worth telling the neighbors. THANK YOU
